QuestSoft's Leonard Ryan Named One of Mortgage Banking Magazine's 2014 Tech All-Stars

LAGUNA HILLS, CALIF., March 19, 2014 – Leonard Ryan, founder and president of QuestSoft Corp., a provider of automated mortgage compliance software, has been named one of Mortgage Banking magazine's 2014 Tech All-Stars. The Tech All-Stars is an annual list honoring mortgage industry professionals who continue to innovate in an adverse regulatory environment.

Ryan was selected due to his forward-thinking vision of leveraging technology to develop business solutions which automate the mortgage compliance process to ensure standardized and accurate compliance for financial institutions.

"It is an immense honor to be recognized by the Mortgage Banking team and named to their 2014 Tech All-Stars list," said Leonard Ryan, founder and president of QuestSoft. "The QuestSoft team's passion is to innovate and deliver automated compliance solutions that not only guarantee accuracy and compliance, but remove stress and complexity from the submission process. This recognition solidifies QuestSoft's commitment to the mortgage banking industry as we work to positively impact lenders, vendors, consumers and investors to forge a better marketplace."

QuestSoft's line of automated compliance software, including the company's flagship solution, Compliance EAGLE, automates the entire mortgage lending compliance process by performing prefunding checks on each regulation against a standard regulatory library. Ryan's newest software suite, Compliance RELIEF, is an all-in-one system that consolidates QuestSoft's regulatory reporting solutions into one package, including the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act (HMDA), Community Reinvestment Act (CRA), Fair Lending, NMLS Mortgage Call Report (NMLS MCR), South Carolina Mortgage Log System (SCMLS) and various state regulatory submissions.
